

PassPhrases

- PassPhrases are easily remembered but difficult to guess strings of words
- They should not be direct quotations from books, songs etc. Hackers will use dictionaries of words, phrases and commonly used passwords to guess your password.
- They should not be obviously personal, for example it would not be recommended to use MyFavouriteFootballTeamIsArsenal
- A good passphrase should have at least 15 characters and be difficult to guess. It should contain upper case letters, lower case letters, digits, and preferably at least one punctuation character. For example !DrinkCola3xAWeek (but do not use this one now it has been published!)
